COMMENTING upon the abandonment by the Authorities in Downing Street of the scheme for the resuscitation of the Stonecutter's Island Gaol, the London and China Express of the 23rd ultime says :- " The public of "Hongkong have gained another victory by "the decision of the Colonial Office to re-" jest the scheme for erecting a new gaol " on Stonecutter's Island, and are now no " doubt beginning to experience a sense of re-" lief from the anxiety they have been labour-"ing under for so long with reference to the "affairs of the Colony. The question of the "tion was offered, but it was strongly sup-"ported by Sir John Pork Hennessy, who " had set his mind on carrying it out. For-"tunately, however, it was necessary to sub-" mit the proposal to head-quarters, and ow-"other similar schemes; the Secretary of "the subject, with the result mentioned." Public opinion in this Colony did set very vernor HENNESSY and advocated by the Hon. CHARLES MAT in the Council, and the ultimate, ject is certainly a triumph for those who like ourselves, have consistently and years argued against the erection of a new gaol on Stonecutter's Island as a piece of London contemporary is apparently not aware of the fact that the scheme had receive are not mistaken, plans were either prepared was probably due chiefly to Sir John Pope our late Governor doubtless was secure ample accommodation for rascaldom of Kwangtung whom he quibring himself to part with so large a sum trouble of putting through his inceptions, the passage in very good-time.

In short the glory of leaving the Colony with a large surplus seems to have outweighed with His Excellency the credit that might have attached to his administration if some important public buildings had been completed during his term of office. Possibly he had considered the question carefully from his point of view-self-aggrandise-

The supposed need for a new gael arose from two causes: the increase in the number of criminals committed during Governor HENNESSY's administration, and His Excellency's advocacy of the introduction of the " separate system " into the Colony. With regard to the wisdom of crowding the usol with offenders who had previously been dealt with by the magistrates in summary manner, and by periodically deporting certain prisoners, we have again and again expressed very emphatic opinione. It is impossible and utopian to dream of converting Victoria Gaol into a vast almshouse for the idle, the vicious, and the depraved population of Kyangtung. Such punishment as will for the future compel Chinese ruffians to look askance at the Colony las an undesirable field for the loafer, the thief, and the burglar, should be devised and adopted; reformatory measures among an alion criminal class are atterly impracticable, and must fail if tried. The separate system has been tried in the United Kingdom, and on the whole has proved a very severe punishment to criminals there. That it is disliked by the Chinese also we can well believe. for they are thereby prevented from hatching schemes for the future plunder of peaceful MAP OF THE TOWN AND ENVIRONS OF citizens, and from airing their choice vocab ulary of obscene expressions. But that separate confinement proves anything like as intolerably irksome to the Oriental as to the more sanguine and excitable Occidental we cannot believe. The Chinaman, in particular, is notoriously apathetic, and though he has no preference for solitude he can always coil himself up and sleep the dismal hours away when he is not engaged in work, while so long as he has any occupation he can dispense with company. Still, as we said before, the gaol is less pleasant to the Chinese criminal when he has no society, and the sureness of his rice and the safety of his shelter scarcely re-boon companions. Wherefore, so far as is practicable, we applaud the separate system: A number of separate cells have been constructed in the existing gaol, and more might be made if the quarters at prevent occupied by female prisoners were thrown in, and the women elsewhere accommodated. The Magistracy site is available at a small cost for that purpose and the piece of ground bolow, partially cleared some years ago, might be utilised for the erection of suitable Police Courts. The present erection is wholly insufficient for the purpose, being small, ill ventilated, and unwholesome for Messrs. S. M. Pettingill & Co., the magistrates and their clerks, especially a the summer months. Daily Press Office, 8th February, 1882.

Ill fares the land, to bastening ills a prey, Where tennis is the only game they play. I certainly cannot join in this deletal prophecy, nor is it at all likely to receive fulfilment. Tennis is still deservedly popular, and, if hardly what it has been characterised by one enthusiant "the greatest discovery of the age," is likely to continue and become yet more the fashion. The secret of its popularity is the social nature of the game, its infinite variety, and the ceaseless activity without ever exertion which it demands. When orieket is impossible, the thermometer standing at 88 deg. to 90 deg. in the shade, old residents have no hesitation in facing each other in the tenniscourts to do right good earnest battle.

By the way, speaking of laws tennis, will the very popular Secretary of the Cricket Club tell us why the fat has gone forth interdicting the game from the Cricket-ground? Playing is allowed in the winter when the herhage has ceased growing, but is not permitted in the summer when the grass grows inxuriantly. If injury to the tuef is the plea, then the rule of contraries is the one acted upon. I cannot avoid thinking it rather hard that the only out-door game which one may reasonably play on a summer afternoon should be prohibited. Surely the ground is large enough to permit the courts to

The "Jin Rick Shaw," also called "Jin Ricky Shaw: " in plain English, the " man power eart." What a useful vehicle it is, and yet what an intolerable nuisance to all but the all engrossing Chinese! Go which way you may throughout the length of Queen's Road, and it's ten chances to one, unless a most careful look out is kept up. and some agility exercised, that you are either run into, or run over, by one of these obtrusive vehicles. Had I snything to do with the licensing department. I would make it obligatory on every "Ricky Shaw" driver, or rather drawer. to keep the kerb close on his left hand, save when passing another vehicle going in the same direction, on pain of being flued for the first offence, and having his trap confiscated for the second. We should then have none of this erratio flying from one side of the read to the other. and no bovering irresolute in the middle at sight of a carriage, which now marks the course of the "Ricky Shaws," to the imminent risk of limbifnot of life. Then again, why is it that such feeble specimens of bumanity are over allowed to take out licenses as " Ricky Shaw " drawers ? It would really seem as if theoraft received its supply from the ranks of the poverty-stricken and profligate, and it often goes sadly against the grain when I find my 14 stone laboriously following a poor wretch whose skeleton stares mein the faceas I use his "power." Yet, poor creatures, they no sconer ship their load, be it two lean Chinamen, or three fat bostwomen, or one ponderous European ship: captain, than they start with a joyous spring that does one's heart good to see, and only slowdown when the pace begins to tell. They possess certainly one virtue, and that is, a ready obedience to the Scripture injunction What thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy Another improvement which I would suggest, were the Government so fortunate as to secure my services in their licensing department, would be in a sumptuary direction. As at present constituted, the poverty-stricken wretch or time-worn profligate, who happens to be trusttrousers which he may have saved from the pawn shop, and the result, apart from the indecener warm upon his work, is anything but pleasant to his lead. These fellows make plenty of money as may be guessed from the great popularity of the vocation, and I don't at all see why the powers that he should not make it a sine quá non that all drawers of "man carts" should wear a certain uniform, and keep it clean. I delight much in our public garden, and have spont many a pleasant and profitable hour therein. In many points it excels similar places of resort in countries where Nature more readily and quickly rields to man's affairt to wed her to Art, such as Coplon, Singapore, &c. I often wonder why it is that such a charming lounge, and one so convenient of nocess, should be so little visited by our foreign residents. It seems to serve at present chiefly as gathering place for solumn Parsees and ohattering Chinese atnahe and coolies. These last bring with them one attraction at any rate, and that is the children, whose fair hair and protty faces harmonise sweetly with the floral surroundings, and the merry tinkle of whose laugh carries one back to happier scenes far away. I was the other evening indulging in just such a reflection, when there fell upon the quiet air a series of discordant screams and unseemly yells that at once roused my wrath. These proceeded, I found, from a dozen or so of scantily clothed young Chinese, who were giving rain to their overflowing spirits by jumping.down the flights of stops and racing along the pathways. They rather resented my interference, when I bid them be quiet, but a hint as to police soon made them slink silently away. Here, then I bethought myself, may be one reason why ladies hesitate to trust themselves alone in these charming gardens, namely, because the Chiness are allowed to run riot in them after such a fashion. But even supposing this not to be the precise reason I do not see why the police should not put an instant check upon such vagaries. I am not of those who would advocate the exclusion of our Chinese fellow-colonists from participation in any recreation which we carredves enjoy. But on the other hand I am not Pope Hennessy enough to claim for them consideration and privileges to which they have not a shadow of a title, and for which they may be utterly unfit. Let them enjoy the public gardens by all means; but let some precaution be taken to see that they come there decently dressed, and behave themselves properly whilst they are there. The gardens will then become a fitter resort for those whose presence, next to that of the flowers, constitutes its chiefest washed, and one day, when wandering through the old town, I actually saw women washing clothes in the little poplaleft in a half dry stream, with dead pupples and all kinds of sewage festering in the very water used. Throughout the Riviers the same abominable practice exists, and hundreds of women may be seen every day oroughing together over filthy pools and sewers. Ah-Chong, washerman, sets up an establishment in one of the small shops on the street side. Where he washes, we will for the moment not enquire. Towards evening he and some dezen belps may be seen hanging the damp clothes in rows upon bamboos slung to the ceiling of his shop, and suspended so closely to each other that it is a marvel how he manages to arrange. them, or, when arranged, how they ever get dry. Then imagine the foul airs in which all this linen remains through the night, the shop closely shut, chow-show and filth lying averywhere about, and a dozen or more uncleanly Chinese stretched on the floors taking their rest. Really, in sanitary point of view, the Colonial Surgeon ought to look to it, and have this fruitful means of dieseminating disease put a stop to by statute Of course, there is little harm done, save perhaps the risk of cutaneous affections, so long as no epidemie is about. But were cholera or smallpor to visit us, what a hot bed of infection such washing houses would become! Could but some enterprising individual or company start a pro perly conducted steam laundry, subject to police inspection at all times, what comfort one might have in donning one's clean shirt of a morning and in feeling that no nasty risks were being run I am told it is a general practice, but I can only write, what I have myself seen, that the washermen, whilst washing, find Thresher's India gause waistcoats a pleasant substitute for their own calico jackets, and use them accordingly. Also that they turn an honest penny (P) by letting out clothes during the week to aspiring youths of Macao extraction, who covet fine feathers; but have not the means to buy them. I have frequently heard an old resident declare that when the English lived chiefly at Macao in early days, he once actually met a malcreade face to face. with his own name clearly written on the young person's shirtfront. (Tableau.) Be this as it may, I must confess that either possibility makes me only the more long for the day when one can consign one's linen to a properly constituted steam laundry. How the one that was attempted to be got up here ever failed is to me a mystery.

My object is not to draw special attention to a certain advertised preparation of our "leading " tonsorial artist, for the benefit of those whose heads have prematurely become innecent of "blades" (I these whom the gods love " bald " young) but to practically apply to it Shakenpeare's memorable question of "what's in a name" ? and to suggest the enquiry—if the title of "Gogo" wash won't sell a hair preparation what title will ? If there's nothing in "Gogo wash" what's in a name indeed ?

During the month of July there has certainly been no deficiency of moisture in this Colony What the Poet Laureate has felicitously dubbed "the useful trouble of the rain" has interfered considerably with outdoor enjoyment. Tennis has been out of the question, and a mild walk has been possible only with chair, "gamp," and their precautions against the sudden, swift, and drenching showers. But 1 suppose we ought not to complain, for we bave been infinitely better off than our Shanghai friends. With the of one fine week, they have had almost contimuous rain since the commencement of the summer. True enough, they have also enjoyed the advantage of very low temperature, but as a sat-off there is the certainty of short gross of rice and cotton, which must affect the purchasing power of the natives. It is said that, even supposing the rest of the summer should prove continuously fine in Mid-China, the utmost that look-out this.

From those figures it will be seen that throughout England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, there were planted on various estates, during the period under re-view, no less than 3,150,826 trees! Of these, 2.175.826 were planted in Soutland, 646,200 in England, 294,800 in Ireland, and 40,000 in Wales. It is, of course, not easy to get absolutily complete returns, but those we give are well within the mark, and prove that there is at least some set-off against tree felling and the gradual increase of bricks and mortar in these islands-Journal of Forestry.
